Books

I have written five books, each of which has gone through between three and six editions, depending on when the book was first published. The books have been translated into 21 languages and are used at universities all over the world. In all, there are currently 177 versions of these books. A list of them can be found at <http://www.cs.vu.nl/~ast/publications>. The total number of books sold is well into the millions and has thus influenced the lives of millions of students.

MINIX

I designed and implemented MINIX all by myself in 1985 in order to give students an open-source UNIX clone to study. I also wrote a book describing how it works inside, line by line. The software and the book became instant successes. The book has sold over 300,000 copies. In 2004 I became an Academy Professor of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences, which provided me with 2 million euro for research. This led to a change of direction for MINIX, with MINIX 3 focusing on becoming a self-healing, fault-tolerant system targeted at embedded systems. This research led to my getting a prestigious ERC Advanced Grant in 2008 worth 2.5 million euro. In 2013 I received an ERC Proof of Concept grant to further develop MINIX 3.

In 2005 a new Website was set up for MINIX 3 and in 2007 we began tracking the traffic. Since 2007 there have been over 3 million visits to the Website and over 600,000 downloads of MINIX 3. As academic research projects carried out by a small team of Ph.D. students, this is quite a bit.

One of the early users of MINIX was Linus Torvalds. He began modifying MINIX to add new features that he thought were needed. Over a period of time he had modified almost everything and launched it as a new operating system, Linux. It is fairly safe to say that had I not written MINIX there would have been no Linux.
